

Click to Print

Close

Live From Milan: The Malo Knit Jacket

It's great when a brand decides to focus on its DNA and then gets it very very right. Under designer Saverio Palatella, cashmere specialists Malo have recently refocused their attention on knitting. Not that they let that limit them to their exquisite sweaters. In fact what might rank as the best double-breasted jacket of the week — there are a lot of them — is Palatella's micro-cotton jersey blazer in dove grey with silver metal buttons. People have been known to lose their marbles over far less impressive pieces. We like.

Find this article at: <http://www.esquire.com/blogs/mens-fashion/live-from-milan-malo-knit-blazer-062110>

Click to Print

Close